JAMES HOWARD McHUGH

He never could hit a jumpshot, and he never grabbed a rebound in his 37 years with the team. He couldn't have dunked the ball from a stepladder and the thought of him in satin shorts and a tank top would have brought a chuckle to his many friends at the Boston Garden. But there has never been, nor will there ever be, a truer Boston Celtic than James Howard McHugh — the Original Celtic, the NBA's Elder Statesman, the ancient Mariner of Causeway Street — whose infectious smile, irrepressible good nature and courageous inner strength were lost to us forever when he passed away on Saturday, May 7th.

The love story — the love between Howie McHugh and the Boston Celtics — began on a summer day in 1946, Walter Brown, the owner of the Boston Garden who was to become the leading pioneer of professional basketball and the driving force behind pro sports' most winning franchise, needed someone to handle publicity for his newest project. He looked to Howie, a former Dartmouth College and Olympic hockey goalie who was then handling the publicity chores for the building.

"Walter chose me because he didn't know anything about basketball," McHugh remembered recently. "All I knew about it was that it was round and didn't have any rags in it. We were a good pair."

From this inauspicious beginning grew the Boston Celtics. And when Red Auerbach came to Boston from Washington, the fans of Boston began to take notice. It wasn't easy, but Howie struggled mightily to bring media attention to the new game. "It was the damnedest collection of guys you ever saw. We had a lot of fun but we couldn't win too many basketball games. I remember when I was starting out, you had eight newspapers in Boston and we couldn't get anything in the paper unless I wrote it. I'd have to sit down in the morning, write something and then take it up to the papers. Today we have guys to do statistics, which I've always abhorred, and we're always being forced to limit the number of press people at our games."

Things changed, both in terms of the success of the team and the media interest in the game. The Celtics captured 14 NBA World Championships during Howie's tenure, and he no longer had to promote the game to which he had given so much. But the one constant through it all was the smile of Howie McHugh. The memories are countless . . .

Baiting the referees from his traditional perch at midcourt . . .

Standing erect and singing loudly during each of the more than 1700 renditions of the National Anthem that he heard before each game began . . .

Vigorously applauding the introductions of players from both teams in a non-partisan show of good sportsmanship before each game, then losing all semblance of objectivity once the action started . . .

Racing onto the court, often before even the trainer, to attend to an injured player, then waving the injury off as insignificant if he could spot no blood or protruding bones . . .

Barking "Celtics" into the phone, his special way of saying "hello" . . .

His eternal losing battles with machinery of all kinds — postage machines, duplicators, folding machines, copiers, automobiles . . .

Appearing in the office on a summer day with his white sneakers resplendent beneath his finest suit, his fishing rainhat over his ears . . .

He knew and was loved by all who wore the Celtics' green. Bob Cousy once said that Howie "personified the Celtics' tradition". Tom Heinsohn called him the "grandfather and counselor to the players". Dave Cowens knew him as "a real super person who had time and a kind word for everyone", then went on to say that "I don't know anyone who didn't like him unless Howie had punched him out, and even then I'll bet he got to love Howie later." Jo Jo White, a particular favorite of Howie's, called him "a very special person who I could talk and listen to . . . he was a friend who I loved". Bill Fitch said, "The body of Howie McHugh may be gone, but his heart and his love will remain forever." Bill Sharman called him "instrumental in keeping the harmony between players and management". John Havlicek saw him as "a true friend to all Celtics".

Red Auerbach, his longtime boss and friend, always understood the value of Howie McHugh. "He was the most loyal man I ever met; he had to be to put up with me for 32 years. He was unique, one of the true characters in this game, and also one of the true gentlemen. He was a man who had more friends than anyone I've ever known."

Courtside at Boston Garden will never seem quite the same without the familiar face and friendly smile of Howie McHugh. And those many of us fortunate to have called him a friend will never feel quite the same about the parquet floor, the player introductions or the National Anthem. Something indefinable and irreplaceable was snatched from us when Howie McHugh died, but something just as valuable will be with us always: the memory of a smiling, giving, loving man — the Original Boston Celtic.

THE TEAM

DON F. GASTON

Chairman of the Board

Don F. Gaston is the new Chairman of the Board of the Boston Celtics and one of the three shareholders of Boston Sports, Inc. At the August 11, 1983 press conference announcing the ownership change, Mr. Gaston functioned as the principal spokesman of the group and spoke of his involvement with the Celtics as "a dream come true."

Mr. Gaston graduated from Stephen F. Austin University in his native Nacogdoches, Texas with a BBA in 1954. He started his business career in accounting with Ernst & Whitney and remained with the firm for nine years as a Certified Public Accountant.

In 1962, he joined Gulf & Western Industries, Inc. as Treasurer and Controller and became Executive Vice-President in 1967. He has also served on the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee for that corporation. He and fellow Celtics' owner Paul R. Dupee led a group of private investors in the purchase of Providence Capitol, Ltd. from Gulf & Western in July of 1982.

Mr. Gaston is currently the Chairman of the Board of Providence Capitol, Ltd., a company whose activities include life insurance, property and casualty insurance and real estate development in the United States, life insurance and real estate development in England and real estate development in France and Canada.

Although a Texas native, Mr. Gaston now resides in Greenwich, Connecticut and maintains many New England ties. He is a member of the American Institute of CPA, the New York Athletic Club and the Stanwich Country Club of Greenwich. He is also presently the President of Madison Square Boys's Club, a charitable organization that operates four clubs in New York City.

Mr. Gaston and his wife, the former Paula Boynton, are the parents of three children. Paul Gaston, who is married to the former Dana Halsey, lives in Providence, Rhode Island and is working on his Master's Degree at Brown University. Donna Gaston Carpenter and her husband Jake reside in Manchester, Vermont. She is attending Williams College in Williamstown, Mass., he is the owner of Burton Snowboards in Manchester. Their youngest child, Patricia, is a freshman at Tufts University in Medford, Mass.

ALAN N. COHEN

Vice-Chairman of the Board and Treasurer

One of the fortunate circumstances in this summer's change in ownership of the Boston Celtics is the entry into the organization of Alan N. Cohen. A man of vast organizational ability and extensive experience in team and arena management, he will serve as Vice-Chairman of the Board and Treasurer of the Celtics.

Born and raised in Clifton and Passaic, New Jersey, Mr. Cohen did his undergraduate collegiate work at Dartmouth College and Columbia University and received his law degree from Columbia in 1954. After his admission to the New York bar and the U.S. Army service, he became an Associate with the New York City firm of Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison, beginning a relationship with that firm that was to last almost 20 years. He served as an Associate with Paul, Weiss from 1954 to 1963 and was a Partner from 1964-70 and from 1978-80.

In the early 1970's, Mr. Cohen held the various offices of Executive Vice-President, Director and member of the Executive Committee of Warner Communications, Inc. of New York City. He left that company in 1974 to assume a position as President, Chief Executive Officer, Director and member of the Executive Committee of Madison Square Garden Corporation in New York City, where he stayed until 1977.

From 1978 to 1983, Mr. Cohen served as Chairman of the New Jersey Nets Basketball Club. He was instrumental in forming the group of investors who purchased the Nets in 1978; that group was responsible for transforming that franchise from a last-place team into the successful and competitive organization it is today. In 1980, he became Vice-Chairman and NBA Governor of the Nets. Also in 1980, he became President and Director of National Kinney Corporation, where he still remains.

Mr. Cohen serves on the Board of Directors of the Graduate School of Urban Management of the New School of Social Research, as well as on other boards in New York. He is a member of the New York State Bar Association and the Association Bar of the City of New York.

Mr. Cohen and his wife, the former Joan Meryl Fields, have two children, Laurie Elizabeth and Gordon Geoffrey, and reside in New York City.

PAUL R. DUPEE, JR.

Vice-Chairman of the Board and Secretary

Born in the Back Bay of Boston, Paul R. Dupee, Jr. holds the distinction of being the first native-born owner of the Boston Celtics since Walter Brown. Having grown up in the shadow of the Boston Garden and having attended Celtics' games as a boy, Mr. Dupee returns home as Vice-Chairman of the Board and Secretary of the team and as one of the three shareholders in Boston Sports, Inc.

Mr. Dupee attended the New Hampton School in New Hampton, New Hampshire before attending Brown University in Providence, Rhode Island. Upon his graduation from Brown with an AB in Economics in 1967, he moved to New York to assume a position with Chase Manhattan Bank. Later that year, he joined Gulf & Western Industries where he served as Vice-President of and President of its Providence Capitol Division.

In July of 1982, Mr. Dupee and Mr. Don Gaston formed a group of private investors who purchased insurance and real estate interests from Gulf & Western to form what is today Providence Capitol Ltd. Mr. Dupee, as President of that company, oversees its various business operations, which range from the life and general insurance business in the United States, United Kingdom and Channel Island to a real estate development business in the United States, Canada, United Kingdom and France.

While he resides in New York City, Mr. Dupee travels extensively and continues to maintain a home in Falmouth, Massachusetts.

RED AUERBACH

President and General Manager

He is, quite simply, the backbone and the driving force behind the most successful sports franchise in history. In the 33 years of his association with The Boston Celtics, the team has won 14 NBA World Championships, accounting for an incredible 42% of the titles available. Nothing even remotely comparable has ever been accomplished.

He is, of course, Red Auerbach of the Boston Celtics.

His success as a coach is legendary. Red began his coaching career on the high school level, but by the age of 29 he was coaching the pros in the NBA. His initial professional job was with the Washington Capitols from 1946 to 1949; his 49-11 record there in 1946-47 was the best won-lost percentage in the league's history until the 1971-72 Los Angeles Lakers (coached, ironically, by a former Auerbach player, Bill Sharman) recorded a 69-13 mark.

Red's three seasons in Washington and one more with the Tri-City Hawks were just a prelude to the career which blossomed with his move to Boston in 1950. The Celtics achieved immediate respectability with Auerbach at the helm, as the 22-46 record the previous season was improved to 39-30. However, although the team won consistently throughout Red's first six seasons, it was plagued by the lack of a quality center and was unable to advance beyond the division finals. The cornerstone of future championships was laid, though, in the presence of such players as Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman, Ed Macauley and Frank Ramsey.

After the team fell to 36-36 in 1955-56 he made the trade which changed the fortunes of the franchise, the league and the sport itself. He sent Ed Macauley and Cliff Hagan to the St. Louis Hawks for that team's first-round draft choice in the 1956 draft and used that choice to pick a center from the University of San Francisco named Bill Russell. The rest is history.

Boston went on to win 11 championships in the next 13 seasons, establishing a dominance over the league that has never been approached. And when Red retired from coaching in 1966, he had led his team to division and world championships in 9 of his last 10 seasons.

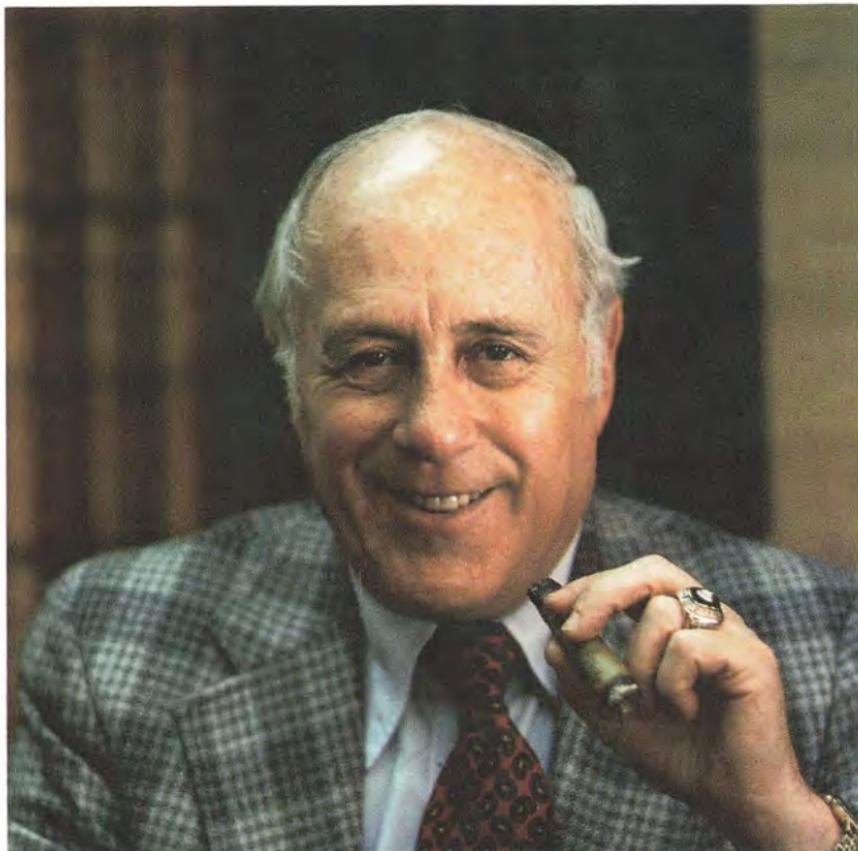

Red's judgement of player talent and his ability to match players with roles has never been equalled. His vast knowledge of the game and skill at communicating that knowledge is proven by the many former Auerbach players who have gone on to become coaches themselves. When he left the coaching position, he had rung up the incredible sum of 1,037 regular-season and playoff wins, eclipsing his closest challenger by almost 300 wins.

Bill Russell himself became the next coach of the Celtics, and Red concentrated on his duties as General Manager. And when Russell retired from both coaching and playing three years and two more championships later, Auerbach's talents were called upon as never before. Remarkably, after only one season with a losing record, the team once again became a contender. Dave Cowens and Jo Jo White were added to the core that already featured John Havlicek, Don Nelson and Don Chaney; Paul Westphal, Paul Silas and Charlie Scott were other mainstays obtained by Auerbach. The net result was two more championships, in 1974 and 1976.

The Celtics' most recent championship in 1981 was the culmination of the third era of Auerbach's reconstruction of the Celtics, perhaps the most difficult. The 1979-80 team completed the most dramatic turnaround in the history of the league, quite an accomplishment after the traumatic happenings of the previous two seasons. And that amazing drive to the 1981 title against all odds completed the return to the top.

The core of the present edition of the Boston Celtics has been fashioned by the collegiate draft, trades and free-agent signings. Larry Bird, Cedric Maxwell and Kevin McHale were all first-round draft choices and Danny Ainge a second-rounder; Quinn Buckner, Dennis Johnson, Robert Parish and Scott Wedman were acquired through trades; and Gerald Henderson and M.L. Carr were free agents.

Red Auerbach has been the recipient of numerous awards and honors throughout his career. He is enshrined in the Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass. for his coaching successes. When the NBA chose its Silver Anniversary team honoring the best of the league's first 25 years, Red was chosen as the coach of that team. In 1982, he was elected to the Washington Hall of Stars, a Hall of Fame which involves people from all sports. He has also received a Doctor of Humane Letters degree from Franklin-Pierce College and a similar degree from the University of Massachusetts in Boston.

Red is the author of three books. His first, Basketball for the Player, the Fan and the Coach, has been translated into seven languages and is the largest-selling basketball book in print. His second book, Winning the Hard Way, was co-authored with Paul Sann. His most recent publication, Red Auerbach: An Autobiography, was written in conjunction with Joe Fitzgerald. His acclaimed "Red on Roundball" series is available in select-a-vision disc for distribution throughout the world. Over the past 30 years, he has given clinics for the State Department throughout the world, from Europe to New Zealand to the Far East.

Red Auerbach has frequently been recognized for his accomplishments in the world of basketball. But just as deserved is his recognition as one of the great organizational leaders in corporate America.

K. C. JONES

Head Coach

His life has come full circle now, and he is back where he belongs.

It was June 7, 1983 when the Boston media packed into Red Auerbach's office for a hastily-called press conference. Eleven days earlier, Bill Fitch had shocked them when he announced his resignation as Head Coach of the Boston Celtics before a similar assemblage. This time, though, there were no real surprises, and the smiling face beside Red was a familiar one. No introductions were necessary, for the choice was a member of the family — K.C. Jones.

It was a rewarding moment for K.C., a highlight in a basketball career in which he has already achieved success at every level. He had proven himself a winner as a collegiate player at the University of San Francisco, a professional player with the Boston Celtics, an assistant coach for three teams and the head coach of the Washington Bullets. This was different, however; as he himself said on that day, "I've always been a Boston Celtic."

He began his brilliant playing career at the University of San Francisco, where he teamed with Bill Russell to lead the Dons to consecutive national titles in 1955 and 1956. The two men were also named to the All-American team and played on the Gold Medal-winning USA Olympic team in 1956.

In the 1956 NBA college draft, the Celtics selected K.C. on the third round. USF teammate Russell also joined the Boston team as their top choice, but K.C. wasn't reunited with his college partner until two years later because of a military commitment.

When he had fulfilled that commitment and finally came to Boston, he was joining a team that featured an All-Star backcourt with Bob Cousy, Bill Sharman and Sam Jones. Yet K.C. earned playing time by displaying the defensive talents that were to become legendary and a surprising knack for playmaking. When Cousy, probably the best passer and ballhandler in the history of the game, retired in 1963, Jones calmly assumed that role, placing third in the league in assists and leading the team to yet another NBA Championship. Perhaps the best assessment of his value to the Boston Celtics was in the bottom line: in the nine years that K.C. Jones played for them, eight championships were brought home to Boston.

His career as a player ended following the 1966-67 season. But basketball was still in his blood, and he took his first head coaching job the following year, taking over the reins of the Brandeis University basketball team. In 1971 he joined former teammate Bill Sharman as an assistant coach with the Los Angeles Lakers; the pair combined to coach the Lakers to the NBA title in 1972, with K.C. garnering the 9th of his incredible total of 10 NBA Championship rings.

In 1973, Jones was named to his first professional head coaching job, with the San Diego Conquistadors of the American Basketball Association; that team compiled a 30-54 record. One year later, he achieved his goal when he took the helm of the NBA's Capital (soon to be Washington) Bullets.

Over the next three seasons, the Bullets were pro basketball's winningest team, with a 155-91 record in that span. The 1974-75 Bullets finished the regular season tied with the Celtics at 60-22 for the best record in the league and then beat Boston in a six-game playoff series for the Eastern Conference Championship. The season ended in disappointment for K.C. and the Bullets, however, when they were swept by the Golden State Warriors in the championship finals.

Jones was to complete one more season as the Bullets' head coach before he was surprisingly relieved of his duties. He was not out of a job for long, though. Ten years after his retirement as a player with the Boston Celtics, K.C. was welcomed back into the organization when he was named an assistant coach to Tom "Satch" Sanders, another of his former teammates.

For the past five seasons, Celtics' fans have watched K.C. coach from the sidelines as an assistant coach. He has spread the gospel of defense to the Green and contributed to the team in a myriad of ways. The winning tradition he embodies was an essential ingredient in the Celtics' climb to the 1981 NBA World Championship.

Now it is his team. Universally admired for his personal class and respected for his knowledge of the game, he is among the finest teachers of basketball in the sport. The K.C. Jones Era has begun.

JIMMY RODGERS

Assistant Coach

This will be Jim Rodgers' fourth year as an assistant coach with the Celtics, and his worth has increased with each season. His thoughtful and knowledgeable approach to his job will make him an invaluable asset to K.C. Jones in his inaugural season as head coach.

A graduate of the University of Iowa in 1965, where he was a three-year starter for the Hawkeyes, Rodgers began his coaching career as the assistant to Bill Fitch at the University of North Dakota. When Fitch left North Dakota in 1967, Jim assumed the head coaching duties and compiled a 39-33 record over the next three years. In 1970, Jim spent one season as assistant coach to Lannie Van Eeman at the University of Arkansas. The following year, he was re-united with Bill Fitch as his assistant coach and chief scout with the newly-formed Cleveland Cavaliers of the NBA.

From 1971 to 1978, Rodgers was head scout, bench coach and college scout for the Cavaliers. For the 1979-80 season, he served as the Director of Player Personnel for Cleveland. However, when the franchise changed hands several times late in the season, Jim opted to once again join his long-time friend Bill Fitch, who had left Cleveland in 1979, here in Boston.

A quiet, personable, hard-working man who is most well-respected among his peers, Jim's responsibilities with the Celtics include scouting, game preparation and coaching from the bench. A man of vast organizational ability, he employs a methodical approach to coaching. Moreover, it is Jim who is primarily responsible in the Celtics' organization for assessing talent for the collegiate draft each year.

Rodgers lives in Walpole with his wife, Donna, and their two high-school aged sons, Matthew and Tim.

CHRIS FORD

Assistant Coach

Just eight months after his playing career ended, Chris Ford has returned to the Celtics' family. On June 9, 1983, new head coach K.C. Jones announced that Chris was his choice to complete the coaching triumvirate that would control the Celtics' fortunes this year.

As a player, Chris was always highly regarded for his on-the-court intelligence, his leadership and his spirited involvement in each game. Drafted by Detroit in 1973 after a distinguished collegiate career at Villanova, Chris spent his first six years as a professional with the Pistons. He was a solid member of a competitive Pistons' team in those early years, but he blossomed after his early-season trade to Boston in 1978.

That first year in Boston, Chris was voted the Most Valuable Player on a team that finished with the worst record in the franchise's history. But he was to become an integral part of the turnaround that followed. On October 12, 1979, Chris scored the first 3-point field goal in the league's history and then continued to be one of the prime reasons for the popularity of the new rule with his uncanny accuracy in key situations. And, of course, he was an essential element in the Celtics' march to the NBA Championship in 1981.

When Johnny Most was sidelined with an illness last season, Chris was asked to join the WRKO-radio team to add his expert commentary to their broadcasts. He also did some volunteer coaching with the very successful Boston College basketball program.

When the BC season ended, it was announced that Chris had been appointed as a full-time assistant coach to Gary Williams at that school. Williams and Boston College were kind enough to release Ford from his commitment, though, when K.C. Jones and Red Auerbach offered him a similar job on the professional level.

Chris presently lives in Lynnfield with his wife, Kathy, and their three children — Chris (8), Katie Marie (5) and Anthony Michael (born May 13, 1982).

DR. THOMAS SILVA

Team Physician

Dr. Thomas Silva, the Celtics' Team Physician for the past 15 seasons, is vested with the ultimate responsibility for the diagnosis and treatment of every injury sustained by a Celtics' player. In addition to overseeing the general physical health of each athlete, Dr. Silva also strives to guarantee that each player is in the best possible condition for every contest.

As Team Physician, Dr. Silva works closely with the players and both training and coaching staffs and serves the integral function of determining whether or not a player will be able to suit up for a game, regardless of the importance of that game.

During home games, Dr. Silva can usually be found at courtside, close to the action and ready to deal with any medical emergencies that may arise. He accompanies the team on all playoff trips as well.

Dr. Silva's dedication to sports medicine extends beyond his duties with the Celtics, as is evidenced by his past involvement with Boston University, where he has served in the capacity of Chief Physician for Athletics.

A general surgeon at University Hospital in Boston, Dr. Silva received his undergraduate degree from Tufts University, his D.M.D. from Tufts Dental School, and his M.D. from Boston University Medical School.

Dr. Silva and his wife are the parents of four boys and two girls and they reside in Chestnut Hill, Mass.

RAY MELCHIORRE

Trainer

One of the most important members of the Boston Celtics never plays a minute of basketball, but his capable handling of his many responsibilities is essential to the success of the team. That key man is the trainer, and there are none more competent than the Celtics' Ray Melchiorre.

For Ray, training is a 24-hour-a-day job. His services are available whenever and wherever one of the players needs treatment for an injury. Usually the first person in the locker room before a game or a practice, he is also generally the last to leave.

His responsibilities don't end with his taping and treatments, however. Ray is also in charge of distributing flight information and tickets, coordinating video equipment for the coaching staff, and arranging practice facilities and coordinating hotel and practice accommodations on the road.

Melchiorre is one of the veteran trainers in the NBA, with prior professional experience with the Pittsburgh Condors of the ABA (2 years) and the Buffalo Braves of the NBA (6 years) before he joined the Celtics. He is the fifth trainer in the 37-year history of the Celtics' franchise. In his four years with Boston, his flexibility program has resulted in a dramatic reduction of muscle pulls and related injuries.

A native of Philadelphia and a 1970 graduate of Bethel College in McKenzie, Tennessee, where he was head trainer and baseball coach for four years, Melchiorre is a member of the National Trainers Association and has taught athletic injury courses at the University of Buffalo, Canisius College and Buffalo State College. In the summer months, Ray continues his work, assisting with basketball camps throughout the United States and making speaking appearances.

Ray and his wife, Liz, reside in Walpole, Mass. They have three children: Michael (20), Kathy (15) and Lisa (10).

GIL SANTOS

Play-by-Play, Television

One of the most skilled and versatile broadcasters in the business, Gil Santos brings over 20 years of experience to his calls of Boston Celtics' games. He will be entering the third year of his partnership with Bob Cousy on WBZ-TV (Ch. 4).

Gil has an impressive list of credentials in both radio and television. After his 1959 graduation from the New England Broadcast School, he worked in the New Bedford area in radio. In 1966, he joined WBZ-Radio as a free-lance announcer handling New England Patriots and Boston College football, continuing as the Voice as the Patriots until 1979. In that time, he gained his deserved reputation as one of the premier football announcers in the country, a reputation which has been bolstered by his recent appointment as the play-by-play broadcaster for Penn State football.

In 1971, Gil joined the full-time staff of WBZ-Radio as the morning sportscaster, a position he still holds. His broad range of sports broadcasting experience also includes New England Tea Men soccer, Providence College basketball and national football telecasts for both CBS and ABC-TV.

He has been the recipient of a number of awards. In 1980 he received a New England Emmy as the Best Play-by-Play Broadcaster in the area; in 1981 he was named the Massachusetts Sportscaster of the Year and in 1982 he received UPI's Best New England Sportscaster award.

Gil makes his home in Raynham, Mass., with his wife, Roberta, son Mark (19) and daughter Kathleen (16).

BOB COUSY

Color Commentary, Television

He was known as the "Houdini of the Hardwoods". As a little man excelling in a sport dominated by the large, he displayed an innate understanding of the technicalities of basketball unequalled before or since.

He is, of course, Bob Cousy, one of the greatest players in the history of the NBA. And he has found the perfect outlet for expression of his technical insight into the game of basketball, handling the color commentary on the telecasts of Boston Celtics' games on WBZ-TV.

For thirteen years, Bob Cousy was a dominant force in the league as a playmaker and scorer, while leading the now-famous Celtics' fast break. During that period, he captained teams that produced seven World Championships. He was named the Most Valuable Player in the league in 1957, and was chosen to the All-NBA first team for 10 straight years.

Once out of uniform, Cousy lent his knowledge of the game to others as a college and professional coach. His successful reign as head coach of Boston College was followed by a 4½-year stint with the Cincinnati Royals (who became the Kansas City Kings in his third year). While a professional coach, he played an essential part in the development of a young player named Nate Archibald, who styled himself after Cousy the player and led the Celtics to a championship of his own in 1981.

Now he lends that knowledge to all who watch the Celtics on television. Teamed with Gil Santos, Cousy is able to give his viewers an understanding of the action that few commentators are as qualified to share.

The former Holy Cross All-American makes his home in the city of his alma mater, Worcester, Mass., where he lives with his wife, Missy.

MIKE GORMAN

Play-by-Play, Cable Television

Mike Gorman is returning for his third year as the play-by-play announcer for the cable network broadcasting 40 Boston Celtics' games this year on Sportschannel. In past years, Mike has drawn excellent reviews for his incisive play-by-play and his knowledge of basketball.

Mike, 35, is a native of Dorchester who grew up practically in the shadow of the Boston Garden. He learned the game watching the great Celtics' teams of the 50's and 60's.

His experience in broadcasting is extensive. Currently the Sports Director at WPRI-TV in Providence, Rhode Island, he also has served as the voice of the University of Rhode Island on WPRO-Radio. He also handles the play-by-play on television for the Providence Friars and the regional Big East game of the week. In 1980, Mike received the Associated Press award for his play-by-play work with Tom Heinsohn, his cohort on the Celtics' broadcasts, on Providence College basketball.

Mike, his wife Jessie and their daughter Kristen reside in Portsmouth, Rhode Island.

TOM HEINSOHN

Color Commentary, Cable Television

Tom Heinsohn is a name that certainly needs no introduction to followers of Boston Celtics' basketball. One of basketball's all-time greats, he played for the Celtics from 1956 to 1965 and was a key member of eight championship teams. He was the NBA's Rookie of the Year in 1957, was a member of the All-NBA Team 4 times, and averaged 18.6 points during his illustrious playing career.

Tom returned to the Celtics four years after his retirement as a player to take the coaching reins vacated by Bill Russell. His coaching career, like his playing career, was punctuated by success, and he was twice the coach of Celtics' championship teams. In 1973, he was the recipient of the NBA's Coach of the Year award.

Heinsohn has broad experience behind the microphone on both radio and television and has covered both collegiate and professional basketball. This is the third year of his teaming with Mike Gorman; in that period they have covered a multitude of professional and collegiate contests.

When Tommy is not covering basketball for Sportschannel, he is a chartered life underwriter with State Mutual Life Assurance Company of Worcester and has an ownership interest in the Hamiltonian Hotel in Bermuda. He is also an accomplished painter whose works have graced art shows all over the country.

Tom and his wife, Diane, have two boys and one girl and live in Natick, Mass.

JOHNNY MOST

Play-by-Play, Radio

For almost a third of a century, Boston Celtics' fans have sat by their radios and thrilled to some of the best basketball action in history, as related by the gravelly voice of the great Johnny Most. Calling the plays as he sees them from his perch "high above courtside" and bringing 32 years of NBA experience to the microphone, Most has become a tradition with the team and its fans.

In his 31 years with the Celtics, Johnny has been a part of 14 NBA Championships and some of the greatest moments in professional sports. His "Havlicek Stole the Ball" will long be remembered as one of the immortal moments in sports broadcasting.

The transplanted New Yorker is a graduate of Brooklyn College, where he played both football and basketball. He began his broadcasting career as a protege of one of the all-time greats, Marty Glickman, announcing the New York Knicks' games; he also did the New York Yankees' pre- and post-game shows with Glickman and Gussie Moran. Experience with the football Giants and the Brooklyn Giants and Dodgers further qualified him for his move to Boston in 1952 to join the Celtics.

Johnny's enthusiasm for the Celtics and the game of basketball is contagious. Celtics' fans strongly identify with his partisan approach to the games. When the Celtics made the switch to WRKO-Radio two years ago, it was inevitable that Most would make the move also, carrying his life's work to the new station.

Midway through last season, Johnny was sidelined by a serious illness. But his tenacity and strength of spirit brought him back to the microphone before the season had ended, and he approaches the coming season with a new sense of purpose.

Most, who now resides in Manchester, New Hampshire, has four children, two boys and two girls.

GLENN ORDWAY

Color Commentary, Radio

Glenn Ordway begins his second full season as color commentator on WRKO's broadcasts of Celtics' games this year. The perfect complement to Johnny Most, he has also filled in admirably on play-by-play over the past two seasons when Most has been sidelined.

Glenn has a wealth of experience in sports broadcasting, having spent five years as the sports director and talk show host at Boston radio station WMEX/WITS. He served two of those years as the color analyst for that station's broadcasts of Boston Bruins' hockey games.

In the spring of 1981, Glenn brought his considerable talents to WRKO, where he serves as the Sports Director and teams with Guy Mainella to host the popular weeknight sports talk show, "SportsCall". His energetic style and subjective approach to controversial issues have established him as a respected fixture among Boston sports media.

Ordway has anchored WRKO's continuous coverage of the Boston Marathon for the past three years. In 1981, he was distinguished with a first place sports award for that coverage from United Press International. WRKO listeners have been provided with excellent update reports of the NFL and NBA drafts for the past three years under Ordway's guidance and direction. When the Boston Celtics clinched their 14th World Championship, Glenn reported the celebration live from the Summit in Houston, Texas.

Glenn and his wife, Christine, and their young son, Michael Patrick, reside in Hanover, Mass.

CHANGES IN NBA PLAYOFF STRUCTURE

The NBA's Board of Governors, at its annual summer meeting in New York last June, adopted a resolution that makes two major changes in the NBA's playoff structure beginning with the 1983-84 season:

1. Sixteen teams shall qualify for the playoffs. There shall be eight teams from each conference, consisting of the two division champions and the six other teams in each conference with the best winning percentage during the regular season.
2. The first round of the playoffs shall be a best-of-five series (instead of best-of-three) with all succeeding rounds, including the NBA World Championship Series, being best-of-seven. All teams will participate in the first round; byes that formerly went to division winners have been eliminated.

Following are the playoff pairings:

Note: Team 1 in each conference is the division winner with the better record, Team 2 is the other division winner and Teams 3-8 are ranked according to their regular-season winning percentage.

NEW ENGLAND IS SWITCHING TO BASF CHROME!

HEAR ALL OF THE MUSIC AND NONE OF THE TAPE.

Nothing comes between you and your music when it's recorded on BASF Pure Chrome audio tape. Thanks to BASF's exclusive Pure Chrome formulation, you hear all of the music's highs and lows, and none of the hiss and background noise you get with other brands. And BASF Pure Chrome is designed especially for the Type II Chrome Bias position. Don't settle for anything less than the world's quietest tape.

REPLAY AND RE-RECORD. THE QUALITY NEVER FADES.

No matter how many times you replay it or re-record on it, BASF Chrome Video tape keeps on delivering first-run sharpness, color brilliance, clarity and outstanding sound reproduction. The reason is BASF's exclusive Pure Chrome formulation. And BASF Chrome Video tapes are compatible with all VHS and Beta Video Recorders. Don't trust your recordings to any other brand of tape.

DISCOVER THE PURE CHROME QUALITY DIFFERENCE.

GUARANTEE OF A LIFETIME

"The Guarantee of a Lifetime." All BASF audio cassettes, video cassettes, Qualimetric FlexyDisks and reel-to-reel tapes come with a lifetime guarantee against manufacturing defects. Should any of these products ever fail, except for abuse or mishandling, simply return it to BASF for a free replacement.
